

LEARNING ENGAGEMENT 2:

PROJECT REFLECTION

1. Were the assignments and instructions in class clear? If not, please explain.

The assignments and instructions in class were always clear and specific, especially the Photoshop tutorials that you gave us in class and you made us write the instructions down which were very useful and I ended up using those notes for each of the compositions if I forgot something or wasn't so sure about something.

2. Were the assignments and instructions on Schoology clear? If not, please explain and provide examples that have worked for you in other classes.

The assignments and instructions on Schoology were as clear as the instructions given in class, I didn't have any problems with them and it was pretty easy navigating through them and understanding them.

3. Name something that you think you did particularly well in this project? What did you excel at? Be specific.

I think I did well in using colors and taking pictures for this project as from my past experience, I am not really that good at taking pictures nor using colors in my art.

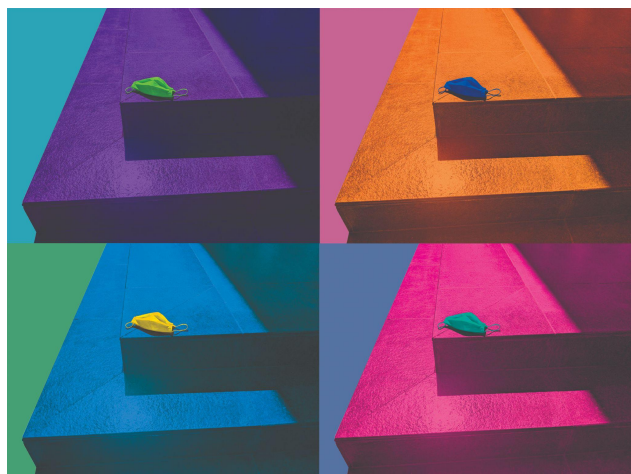

4. What did you find challenging? Name something that you would like to redo or work more on in this project. Be specific.

I think I found coming up with ideas for the pictures quite challenging as this really affects the artwork and it took some time to come up with subjects that were all related. If I were to redo something in this project, it would probably be the quality of the original picture as that is something that can always improve.

5. Name something that you found interesting in two of your peer's artwork and why:

I found these 2 images to be very interesting:

In the first picture [left to right] you can see how the person used the polygonal tool in Photoshop for cutting perfectly and I can tell it took them a long time to cut since the string part of the mask is really thin and you need to cut the picture very carefully. I also like how they used something so simple to convey something very important and it shows how something that anyone could have imagined would be this important to our everyday lives now. In the second picture, I really really liked the quality of the picture and the colors and shadows that were utilized. This is the definition of a picture taken on an iPhone. The colors are also used in such a way that the ones in the background don't take too much of the viewer's attention while the foreground takes all of the attention just how it is supposed to be.

6. Describe some of the feedback you received from your peers on Padlet. Do you agree with it or not? And why?

Some of the feedback that I got from my peers from a picture I posted on Padlet is how they could relate to what I posted. Post:

It shows how our whole perception of going to class has changed depending on if we are going to it physically or virtually.

7. Why do you think it is important to tell the story of what we've lived through the Covid-19 pandemic?

It is important to tell a story so that people in the future can look back and understand how the people who came before them lived their lives in this pandemic and affected a whole generation and changed their perceptions of things like working, going to school by a lot.
